Fear 16 Airmen Perish in Arizona Crash

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (AP)—All 16 men aboard a four-engine Air Force tanker crashed into a steep and remote northern Arizona mountain yesterday.

The only authorities to reach the wreckage reported finding eight bodies and no sign of life. A thorough search for additional remains was begun today.

The Air Force said the plane, a KC97 on a routine flight from Walker AFB, N. M., was carrying 16 men but did not identify them. The tanker plowed into the sheer side of Gray Mountain, about 40 miles east of the Grand Canyon where 128 persons died in the crash of two air liners on July 1958.

An explosion was heard shortly after the plane was reported seen flying low over a nearby trading post. Reporter Bill Deaver of the Flagstaff Arizona Daily Sun, who reached the foot of the bluff shortly before darkness halted rescue operations, said a wide area around the wreckage was burned.

The peak of the mountain, an ash-covered dead volcano, rises about 7,000 feet above sea level and 1,500 feet above surrounding terrain. The plane hit about half way up the mountain.

Sheriff Cecil Richardson of Coconino County said the tragedy apparently occurred between 9 and 10:30 a. m., but it was mid-afternoon before the wreckage was sighted.

Mrs. Vivian Stanfill, operator of nearby Gray Mountain Trading Post in the Navajo Indian Reservation, said she saw a big plane flying very close to the ground shortly after 9 o'clock. Harry Singer, who lives 10 miles west of Gray Mountain, said he also saw the plane and, a few minutes later, heard an explosion.

Visibility at the time was given as 10 to 15 miles, and a heavy fog covered the ground in the area.

Others Urged to Enter Yule Parade Floats

The Hope Gospel Tabernacle, the Lions Clubs and the Kiwanis Club have returned their cards indicating that they will enter floats in the Christmas parade, scheduled for Thursday evening, Dec. 5 at 7 o'clock, according to James Morrow, parade chairman.

Other organizations have indicated that they will enter but cards have not been returned as of this date. The deadline for entering has been set as Monday, Nov. 4th.

Letters have been sent to all local churches, schools, clubs and other organizations within the county. Several out of town groups have also received invitations to participate. "Any organization desiring to enter can do so even if they failed to get a letter," said Mr. Morrow.

The theme for this year is "The Christmas Story as told in the Bible," and indications are that this will be an outstanding Christmas event.

Prizes for the best floats are as follows: 1st $75, 2nd $50, 3rd $25, 4th $12.50, and 5th $12.50.

No Escort at Little Rock

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—Nine Negro students entered Central High School today without military escort and without incident. Automobiles carrying the students were parked on the 14th street side of the building, and one car with two others arrived at the 14th street side.

A military spokesman informed newsmen and photographers that no incident disturbed their normal entry into the building.

The students are in the middle of their sixth week at the integrated high school.

Chinese Physicists to Get Nobel Prizes

STOCKHOLM (AP)—Stockholm newspapers today reported two young Chinese physicists working in the United States will receive the Nobel Prize in Physics.

They are Prof. Tsung Dao Lee, 28, of Columbia University, and Prof. Chen Ning Yang, 34, of the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton, N. J. Last January they announced discoveries that destroyed the "principle of parity," for 30 years a basic law of all physical theory.

The two newspapers, Aftonbladet and Expressen, also said Sir Alexander Todd, 50, would receive the Nobel Prize in Chemistry. Todd is a Cambridge University professor and a world authority on nucleotides, minute chemical building stones of living matter.

The Swedish Academy of Science will meet tomorrow afternoon to make final selection of the 1957 winners.

Utility Leaders Asked to Finance New Industry

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Arkansas utility leaders have been asked to lend $500,000 to launch the Arkansas Industrial Finance Corp., which was created to finance new industries for Arkansas.

Their reaction was not enthusiastic yesterday.

W. R. Stephens, chairman of the Arkansas Louisiana Gas Co. board, said his firm is willing to provide money but "should not be asked to participate unless all the others do."

R. E. Ritchie, president of Arkansas Power & Light Co., said he would recommend to his board that the proposal be approved.

W. E. Bray, general manager of Southwestern Bell, said he did not think utilities should be singled out to carry the entire load. Several legal questions would have to be ironed out before a decision could be made, Bray said.

L. L. Baxter, president of Arkansas Western Gas Co., suggested banks and insurance companies should be asked to lend part of the total.

About 55 representatives of utilities met to hear an explanation of the industrial financing plan. Gov. Orval Faubus and the AIPC board called the meeting.

The corporation was authorized by the 1957 Legislature as a cooperative effort between the state and private business to furnish capital for prospective industries in Arkansas.

About 100 persons contributed more than $100,000 for non-interest bearing common stock in the corporation. They elected Herbert Thomas of Little Rock as chairman of the board.

Boyle Gives Version of the Death of a Killer

NEW YORK (AP)—Here in the city beautiful that nearly every day can greet a dawn with a homicide, there came a sudden death that gave the millions pause. It was a different death. It was not a routine death in a city where many strange ways of death are routine.

This was a gangster death, the going away with five bullets in his body of the kind of a man who dies with big money in his pocket but who when alive, while often arrested is rarely convicted.

It is the kind of a story that is big news to City Hall and to the man who rides into work here from the suburbs, a source of gossip from the Bowery flop house to Park Ave.

It is an example of the law beyond the law—the tale of a man who many people think deserves to be killed but he is killed not by the people, but by his people.

His death may be justice but it is not law. Police officials announced 100 detectives have been assigned to search for the killers, but very few of the 8 1/2 million people who live here think the 100 will ever bring the two killers to a successful trial, nor do they worry much.

Life Values Not Influenced by Education

By HERMAN R. ALLEN

CHICAGO — A study of high school students added today to an apparently growing body of evidence that American education has no effect whether on their life values.

Last March Phillip E. Jacob of the University of Pennsylvania released a study which indicated that the inner guide posts of American college students go unchanged from their freshman through their senior years.

They Jacob W. Getzels, an educational psychologist at the University of Chicago, said findings about high school students which he said are "exactly in line with what Jacob found."

"The high school score," he said in a prepared paper score, "he said in a prepared paper, 'seems to add up to no runs, no hits, no errors—that is, of course, if not influencing children's values during four years of educational effort is considered no error.'"

Getzels was on the program of the conference of the American High School, sponsored by the University of Chicago and the National Citizens Council for better schools.

He said Americans may be said to hold two kinds of values: 1. Fairly stable "sacred" values—belief in democracy, belief in the rights and equality of the individual, an optimistic view of mankind's future.

2. "Secular" values, which are undergoing crucial transformation with changes in American technological and social structures. For example, he said "sociability is now displacing hard work as the key to success in the eyes of many Americans."

Oglesby Has Full Schedule for Halloween

Oglesby School will entertain with a Halloween Carnival Thursday night, Oct. 31. The building will be opened at 6:30. At this time the PTA mothers will serve hot dogs, hamburgers, pie and drinks.

The rooms will be opened at 7. Entertainment projects will include the moving picture show in the First Grade; the fish pond in the Second Grade; the Country Store in the Third Grade; the doll show and shooting gallery in the Fourth Grade; the cake sale and the sale of other delicacies in the Fifth Grade; and the borrow house and fortune telling in the Sixth Grade.

At 8:30 the rooms will be closed at which time the Costume Parade will begin. The costumes will be judged and prizes will be awarded to the prettiest costume, the most horrifying and the most original.

After casing the store to be burglarized, the gang lays a telephone line from the safe to a vanage point outside the building where streets can be covered in all directions. The telephone is powered by dry cell batteries.

"The peeler" or "driller" can work comfortably, assured he won't be surprised by an officer who might slip in through the back of the building.

"The lookout communicates all the information from the outside. When an automobile passes, the man operating the torches and drills stops work."

Barlesville police said in the recent burglary attempt there, the burglars apparently were disturbed and departed in such a hurry they left the telephone equipment behind.

L. R. Woman May Be Cited by Probers

MEMPHIS (AP)—The Senate Internal Security Subcommittee said last night "there is a present day conspiracy in the Midwest area and there have been extraordinary security measures undertaken by the Communists to protect their identity and activities."

The subcommittee reached the conclusion after a 2-day hearing. Sen. Eastland (Miss), chairman, added that other conclusions and a decision on whether to cite a Little Rock housewife with contempt would be announced later.

The housewife, Mrs. Lee Lorch, threw the hearing into an uproar by answering every question with a statement which began "I am here under protest."

As she reportedly tried to read her prepared statement, Sen. Jenner (R-Ind.) pounded the table with clenched fist and shouted: "You're a troublemaker, aren't you? Saying this committee investigated you because you protected a Negro girl in Little Rock's integration struggle. We are not concerned with integration."

The hearing was held in a rooming house in Little Rock. Mrs. Lorch, who is 40, was arrested last week after being cited for contempt of Congress.

She was released after a 2-day hearing. She is now being held in a Little Rock jail.

PRESCOTT (UP)—Two Hot Springs men were killed early today in a one-car crash four miles north of here.

George W. Duncan, 32, the driver of the car, was thrown out when he lost control and the car smashed into a bridge abutment on Highway 67.

The second man was burned beyond recognition when the vehicle caught fire. State police said the body was "presumed" to be that of Lester Dean Duncan, who left Hot Springs with George Duncan, a cousin.

The accident occurred on Highway 67, about four miles north of Prescott. The car was a 1956 Ford.

Syria Asks UN for Fact-Finding Investigation

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—The president of the U. N. Assembly, Sir Leslie Munro, says he also is willing to try to solve the Turkish-Syrian crisis through private talks.

The blunt-spoken diplomat from New Zealand, who is presiding over the bitter Middle East debates, said in an interview yesterday that he—like his predecessors in the top assembly post—is ready to go outside the meeting hall to aid in solving problems facing the world organization.

In the present crisis, he asserted, "quiet diplomacy can play an important role," and the Assembly president can help by conferring privately with the "principal protagonists and discussing the problem with them."

"I am willing to take part in any way I can," Munro declared. There was a growing belief in the U. N. that the necessary two-thirds majority could not be mustered for either of the two suggestions made informally to the Assembly—that Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld mediate, the Western proposal, or that a special investigation commission be sent to the trouble area, a Syrian suggestion backed by the Russians.

The second man was burned beyond recognition when the vehicle caught fire. State police said the body was "presumed" to be that of Lester Dean Duncan, who left Hot Springs with George Duncan, a cousin.

U. S. Believes Zhukov Is on His Way Out

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—U. S. officials figured today that Marshal Georgi Zhukov is definitely on the skids, but they were uncertain how far he would fall.

President Eisenhower has an opportunity at a news conference to give his own views on the Zhukov mystery. As top generals, Eisenhower and Zhukov worked together at the end of World War II and Eisenhower has expressed admiration for Zhukov's soldierly qualities.

Evidence that Zhukov was on the downgrade was found here most concretely in the way in which Soviet Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchev referred to him while talking with reporters at a Turkish Embassy reception in Moscow yesterday.

This comment was read in Washington as a patronizing reference to a man of Zhukov's stature and a confirmation of the impression which had been growing since Sunday that Khrushchev is firmly in control of Soviet authority.

If the analysis now being made here is correct—and the confirmation or rejection will await Zhukov's new assignment—it means that many experts in the Western world have been wrong about the extent of Zhukov's power.

When Zhukov was restored to possibility they may have been wrong about the nature of his influence on Soviet policies.

When Zhukov was restored to prominence following the death of Joseph Stalin four years ago, he quickly became in Western eyes one of the men to watch in the Soviet hierarchy. The impression was strengthened when he became a member of the Communist party ruling clique and finally moved into the Presidium of the party's central committee as a member.

The Zhukov role, as many Western experts built it up, was further enhanced by prolonged and intense interests over the possibility he provided a channel for personal exchanges between President Eisenhower and the top-most Soviet policymakers.

Finally in the last few months, following the June purge of V. M. Molotov and Georgi Malenkov from the ruling group, Zhukov became, in the opinion of some experts, here a man who shared power with Khrushchev and was possibly even more powerful.

The secret police apparatus, on which Stalin had relied to enforce his despotism had been demoralized by the collective government which succeeded him, leaving only the army as an instrument of physical power. Zhukov, it was assumed, controlled the army.

CHAPTER XX

Dave drew to one side allowing the knuckles to merely graze his neck. But the power behind that damaging blow would have crippled him.

In the backround Kains loomed solid and sinister. He was something untidy, and he had arranged this setup. He set Dave to remembering how once he had him down and stood above him with the bull-whip while two saddle-bums watched. The months he had suffered with the plugging knowledge that he had shown his heels to Kains. Now as Dave sank his knuckles in Gallo's belly he felt the sweep of blind passion.

The blow, delivered with all the force of Dave's worked-down, lean body, would have carried telling effect on a lesser man. But from this bunkhouse mauler came only a grunt of swiftly expelled air. Gallo never even slowed in the delivery of his fists. They fought themselves into the pole bunks and a man shoved Dave away roughly. Then Gallo tried to trap him with his back against the upright. Dave clubbed him de liberately in the face and again they were fightin in the room's center.

"A crewman kicked Dave from behind and he realized he had once more banished against the pole bunks. "Hold it!" Kains' words rang rapier-sharp. "Let 'em fight it out. First man that inter feres will regret it!"

"What inter feres?" came Dave's shout at Gallo's cin. He hadn't expected this to be as powerful a blow as the one delivered in Gallo's belly. The cracking sound of it bounced around the bunkhouse. He was surprised at the effect on Gallo. "It showed him how nuthin' wracking the man's attack had been. How much of his final reserve he was willing to throw at Gallo. The blocky shoulders flew back; Gallo went reeling, tripping over his own feet. His back struck the post upright wrenching it loose from ceiling and floor, and Gallo was going down. He spun into a card table. He grasped its top for support but his dead weight striking all in one side caved its legs. In a reeling half spin Gallo went down with his face buried inside his crossed arms. The sole of a boot at his back propelled Dave after the downed man. He was vaguely aware of Kains' challeng ing yell.

Then Gallo was sliding away from under him. He threw a knee at Dave's groin that set the bunkhouse spinning. His fists were coming in with short, brutal strokes. Dave pulled up both legs to protect his stomach, then he saw an opportunity and let them go to gether. His boot heels struck Gallo squarely on the forehead bringing a howl of pain. Two ragged cuts appeared on each side of Gallo's temple from which blood was pumping. The big man tried climbing onto his feet. Half way he rested, sucking in a raspy breath and shaking his head in clear his brain. Blood splattered across the bunkhouse when he shook, but the still was there in his eyes. Then, laboriously, he fought for his footing and came erect.

Again Dave was on him. It took his greatest effort to lift his fists. He realized he could not go on much longer, that if Gallo came at him with one more lunge he would not be able to absorb the punishment. And yet as he looked at Gallo the knowledge penetrated his brain that Gallo was also finished. The man was out on his feet. He lowered his head, forcing himself toward Gallo like a ram. As he reeled past Kains he was vaguely aware of a hand grasping his shoulder. "Don't kill him!" Kains cried.

Dave broke from the restraining fingers, charging on. He thought he hit Gallo only feebly in the chest with his head. But Gallo went down sideways and shook the floor with his fall. Distant to Dave's ears his own voice sounded. "Anyone else with Gallo's ideas?"

It was Ferris who answered. Ferris was sitting upright on his bunk, his eyes swinging around the bunkhouse in laughing mockery. "No, I guess there ain't nobody here crazy enough to try currying a rebel," Ferris said with biting sarcasm.

Dave swept his glance around and found Ferris aiming his pistol with deadly protest on Morgan. The lean, dark gunman wasn't looking at the gun but he knew it was pointed at him and the barrel of his own pistol had rolled downward on a stiff finger thrust through the trigger guard.

That move split Block S as definitely as though a line had been run down the center of the bunkhouse. On one side stood the glowering Kains with all the hands and all the power within the Padres; on the other side stood Dave and Ferris.

But all of Dave's attention was not on this room. His head was rapidly clearing and from far off he picked up the distant crack of a rifle.

"Somebody's out there shoot ing," Dave added. "It's Clay Green. Prole took a shot at him one time when he rode up to the

New Chevrolet on Display Thursday

Dramatic new styling and outstanding engineering advances mark the 1958 Chevrolet which makes its bow this week at the Young Chevrolet Co. here. Labeled "the car of the year" by news men and technical writers who have attended private showings, the new model will be unveiled on Thursday Oct. 31 in Chevrolet dealerships across the country.

Also on public display for the first time will be the rakish 1958 Corvette and the latest in the Chevrolet truck line.

The 1958 Chevrolet is new from spring. Clay's paying that back now."

Dave heard Kains' boots scrape the floor. The corner of his glance took in Ferris' pistol holding steady until Kains stopped in his tracks. Crech was riding Dave's sorrel, a lively horse that every man in Wolf Creek would recognize. The townspeople were still talking about what Block S had done to the Brays. Green would take pains that Prole saw the sorrel. That meant Dave would take the blame for this attack.

The knowledge turned his voice hard. "Saddle up. Bring Green back fast as you can!"

CHEVROLET INTRODUCES IMPALA

Chevrolet offers in its 1958 Bel Air series two Impala models, named after and strongly reminiscent of a "dream car" in the GM Motorama. This is the Impala sport coupe, distinctively styled from any angle, and setting a new standard for bumper to bumper and from frame to roof line. Some all-new features include:

A completely re-styled car which is longer, lower and wider and emphasizes the flowing sculptured lines from the dual headlamps to softly flared rear fenders.

An X-shaped frame which allows a lower silhouette but retains ample head room and increases leg room and luggage space.

more luxurious ride, along with remarkable handling, stability and durability. Sturdy coil springs, front and rear, are standard. A new "Level Air" system which automatically adjusts to all load weights is optional.

A 248-cubic inch engine which is new from fan to flywheel. Designed primarily around a new combustion chamber, the optional Turbo-Thrust V8 offers greater torque for improved mid-range performance.

Albert Anastasia had been slain in the same New York hotel out of which Arnold Rothstein, the gambler, had struggled, clutching a dying belly, I could not escape the thought that these gangsters, like the German forces I had met in war, were military creatures of a military mind, and sometimes were guilty of confronting a new situation with a habit rather than an improvisation.

As an observer of death on many fronts, however, some artistic and some inartistic, I must say the two-man execution of Anastasia marks a postwar low in the art of public assassination.

The whole picture is one of self-doubt, not only from the viewpoint of those who fired but from the standpoint of those who ordered the triggers pulled. They belong in line — those who pulled the triggers. And those who gave the orders belong in the electric chair.

The picture: They must have been nervous and that is bad. First, as their victim is sitting in a barber chair, they start talking to the first word they are late to the job. Then they fired 10 shots at close range and were lucky that some of the five hit, according to the papers.

This percentage of target inaccuracy illustrates the danger of conversation during business hours. In wartime I have met able, disciplined soldiers who would hang their heads at this kind of a performance.

But the two must have had a well-organized plan, for the way I look at it they had flanking protectors and blockers outside the shop to take care of the outside possible interrupters. And I rather doubt that the men who shot Anastasia ran for a subway.

It would be so much simpler to stroll in an elevator and go upstairs and eat food in quiet in a room registered by another man, and enjoy television in peace. Let the second stringers dispose of the guns.

I realize this theory requires the employment of at least five men to kill one. But it is hard to figure how they could have used fewer and been sure of coping with the traffic problem.

DOROTHY DIX

A Warning to Teen-Agers Who Rush Into Marriage

Dear Dorothy Dix: Can you suggest a way out of a hopeless situation? I'm 21, have a nice job as secretary which helps my college senior husband through school and am unusually attractive. I don't mean to be conceited, but I have won several beauty contests. The trouble is that I've fallen out of love with my husband. I married right out of high school and am always thinking of the fun I missed and how nice it would be to have freedom. Instead of working to put my husband through school.

Men are attracted to me, and lately I have been having small crushes on a few of them. I know I'm in the wrong. My husband has no idea that I feel this way. Should I tell him and ask for a divorce or should I keep hoping for a revival of that "old feeling"?

BRENDA
Dear Brenda: You provide the perfect example against teenage marriages. This is the reason I constantly warn young people to think long (preferably until they are in their 20's) and well before heading for a marriage "license" bureau. High school kids are apt to regard marriage as an extension of courtship days.

According to their theorizing, a steady date becomes a husband, and makes the transition intact. Dates are as frequent and merry as ever, with an added attraction — there's no parental curfew to observe. Then the preacher says, "I pronounce you man and wife," and the scene changes. Housekeeping costs money (a fact not previously acknowledged), and there's nothing left for dates or good times. Young hubby is worried by a job that doesn't keep pace with living expenses, or (as in your case), a college career that leaves little time for courtship.

You want admiration, flattery, expensive dates, and right now it takes every cent to meet necessary expenses. The only consolation I can offer is that it won't always be this way. Your husband's graduation is only a few months off, when he starts his career there will be enough money to keep you home. Would you be better off with a divorce? Of course not! What guarantee will you have that another man would do better? You can't flit from one marriage to another to find the perfect man with time and money enough to spend on you. You describe your husband as kind and considerate. You may not find these essential qualities in another man. You are very young, but since you did assume the responsibilities of marriage voluntarily, make a greater effort to meet and discharge them.

Dear Dorothy Dix: Here's a brief summary of my romance with Van. We met six months ago and, after a brief dating period, he asked me to go steady. We went steady for three months, broke up, and in half an hour he was back asking me to go with him again, but "not steady." I agreed, we dated a few weeks, then broke up again (these break-ups are always his idea). Again he came back, but emphasized the fact that we weren't going steady, though he would like to take me out again. Last night we broke up again. Now, do I go do I not take him back when he makes his penitential comeback? After all, I tell myself, true love never does run smooth.

LIBBY
Dear Libby: The course of true love may not always be smooth, but who wants to travel an endless rocky road? I'm sure you would appreciate a few smooth stretches, and I suggest that you find someone else to give them to you.

Dear Dorothy Dix: The boy I love is engaged to another girl, but I know he really loves me. He doesn't want to back down on the promises he's made, otherwise he'd break off with her in a minute. I'd die if he married her.

at the turn of the century. At that time, only about eight per cent of American youth of high school age actually attended high school. But from then on, spurred by numerous factors including the spread school attendance laws, high school enrollment mounted. Today over 80 per cent of high school-age youths are in school.

Attendance laws now keep many in school who could not have survived the standards of 1900, when high school was largely college preparatory.

One result has been curricular revisions which have posed questions of the high school's purpose and have brought many charges of watered-down high school education. Most notably in recent years, alarm has been expressed that not enough youngsters are preparing for science, mathematics and engineering in view of Soviet Russian strides in these fields.

By coincidence, the high school conference is to be followed here

COMING NOV. 7

Nothing newer

AROUND THE WORLD

The 58 Ford has been proved around the world. This is the most dramatic and most grueling test ever given a new car before its public announcement.

The whole world was used as a test track for the 58 Ford. The car drove through England, France, Switzerland, Italy, Yugoslavia, Greece, Turkey, Iran, Afghanistan, Pakistan, India, Malaya, Thailand, Cambodia, Vietnam, and finally back to the place it started—Detroit, Michigan, U.S.A.

The Ford powered over the great mountain ranges of three continents: from the Alps to the Himalayas and the Rockies. It crossed the great rivers of history: the Thames, the Seine, the Tiber, the Arno, the Tigris, the Euphrates, the Indus, the Ganges.

This car stood at Buckingham Palace, rolled up the Champs Elysees to the Arc de Triomphe, and passed at the Eiffel Tower. It was greeted by the great Paris couturiers at the famous fashion salons where it is "sculptured in steel" styling was applauded by the most style-conscious audience in the world.

Further on came Saigon, the Paris of the Orient, at the farthest tip of Southeast Asia. Finally, it powered across the great Rockies and plains of North America and back, at long last, to Detroit, Michigan.

The 58 Ford . . . has been proved and approved around the world. A natural question arises. Why did Ford go to such great lengths with its 1938 model? Why spend so much money and time and go through all the problems of negotiations, customs, border transit, diplomacy in so many countries?

The answer: In the competitive automobile market of today, only the best in all-around value can survive. And this round-the-world test is the most decisive possible demonstration of the best.

This 1938 Ford is value: hard-dollar value. It is also style, power, performance, and a dozen great new features. But above all, it is value.

This is the car you've been waiting for. See it November 7—there's nothing newer in the world than the 58 Ford!

Thought for the Day Seven Ways to Cultivate a Mental Attitude that will bring you Peace and Happiness:

Rule 1: A. Instead of worrying about ingratitude, let's expect it. Let's remember that Jesus healed ten lepers in one day and only one thanked Him. Why should we expect more gratitude than Jesus?

B. Let's remember that the only way to find happiness is not to expect gratitude — but to give for the joy of giving.

C. Let's remember that gratitude is a "cultivated" trait; so if we want our children to be grateful, we must train them to be grateful.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Baseball's Charley Dressen today was back in the type of job he knows and likes best — on the field, and with his home town club, the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"We hired Dressen because we believe he is the best coach in the business," said Dodger Vice President E. J. (Burr) Bayasi, who announced the signing at a press gathering yesterday.

Dressen's salary was not disclosed. However, the veteran baseball figure last week resigned his $25,000-a-year front office job with the Washington Senators of the American League.

Manager Walt Alston said he plans to station Dressen at third base next season.

"Dressen said he wanted to make it clear right off the bat that he has no ambitions to manage the Dodgers — a chore he did ably in 1951-52."

"I hope Alston manages the Los Angeles Dodgers for the next 40 years," he told the news conference.

Bayasi concurred that the club doesn't plan to ease Dressen into Alston's job.

However, if at any time any club wants to hire Dressen as manager we will not only agree, but we will push him," Bayasi added.

Baskins are believed to be descended from the same stock as American Indians. There is a similarity in their languages and culture.

Odds makers See Aggies by Six Over Arkansas

NEW YORK (UP) — Five of the six major underdog and untold college football teams are favored by oddsmakers to retain their perfect records in Saturday's games. The sixth team — Iowa — was rated even in its national television game with Michigan.

Notre Dame was rated three points over Navy; Texas A & M was six over Arkansas; Oklahoma was 30 over Kansas State; Auburn was eight over Florida, and Dartmouth three over Yale.

The oddsmakers, perhaps made wary by upsets, were cautious, and 22 of the 39 games on the card had a spread of one touch-down or less. As usual, Oklahoma was the biggest favorite.

The Iowa — Michigan game was the closest, of course, and four were one-point picks — Nebraska was the biggest favorite.

Bobcats Crippled for Camden Game Friday

With the important end of their schedule coming up the Hope Bobcats, plagued by injuries, are likely to find the going very tough. In fact the toughest test probably will come Friday night when Hope goes to Camden.

Coach Leon Turpin indicated this morning his team was in terrible shape. Jimmy Chambliss, line stand-out, will not see any action nor will Jerry Franks, starting end, who is still nursing a broken hand suffered in practice. Three others to see limited action are Jerry Thurman, Jimmy May and Tommy Polk. All suffered knee injuries in the Hot Springs game.

With the start of the season Hope was rated even with Crossett to top the district title. Camden was not given too much chance. And this prediction was fairly accurate. The Bobcats and Crossett were big and strong. Hope rocked along and lost only a 1-point decision to a fine DeQueen eleven.

Then things started happening. First the flu hit and two games were cancelled, although the Crossett contest will be played later. Hope showed the effects of two weeks layoff in beating Fairview. Then things really popped and Hot Springs run over the Bobcats by a 10-sided score, injuring four key players. This in itself revealed the conditioning edge lost in the idle two weeks.

In the meantime Camden has caught fire. They started by playing favored Crossett to a tie. Last week they barely lost to Pine Bluff, a Big 8 team. And come Friday night they plan to blast the Bobcats and take over the district lead. And with the Hope boys in the condition they're in, it looks like the Panthers will do just that come Friday night.

Akins Has Inside in Welter Race

By DAVE O'HARA BOSTON (AP) — Virgil Akins personally assumed leadership in the mixed-up welterweight division today with up tournament to decide a world-recognized champion nipping on a probable rematch with Tony De Marco.

Akins, a 29-year-old church deacon from St. Louis, upset the class ratings by knocking out DeMarco, the top-ranked title contender, in the 14th round of a savage slugfest last night at the Boston Garden.

"I'm the champion and now all those guys who've ducked me can get in line," Akins said after accepting a belt as the recognized titlist in Massachusetts, supported by Illinois.

"Those guys" and any tournament planned by the National Boxing Assn., the New York State Athletic Commission and the World Championship Boxing Committee may have to wait for several weeks.

Promoter Johnny Buckley scheduled a meeting for today with Barney Glickman, co-manager of Akins, and Rip Valenti, DeMarco's pilot.

"If DeMarco wants a rematch, we have to give it to him," Glickman said. "That was our agreement."

Valenti said "We want a rematch—and it probably will be held here before the end of the year."

Both camps undoubtedly were thinking of another lucrative pay night. Last night's brawl drew a crowd of 9,636 which paid a gross of $62,608 and a "net" of $49,194 for the non-televized meeting.

Akins, a skilled campaigner with a stiff punch in both hands, floored DeMarco twice in the 10th round, once in the 13th and three times in the 14th before the former welter champ was counted out with his head resting on the lower rope in a neutral corner.

DeMarco, hoping to regain the crown he lost to Carmen Basilio after a reign of just 70 days in 1955, appeared to be en route to a victory until he ran into a terrific right and was dropped in the closing seconds of the 13th.

After surviving the two knock-downs in a vicious 10th, DeMarco easily won the 11th and then dropped Akins for a compulsory eight count in the 12th with a combination to the body and a wicked left hook to the jaw.

The 13th was all DeMarco until Akins, biding his time, found an opening for his powerful right. DeMarco was dropped in his tracks. The count reached five before the bell rang and Tony's hands leaped into the ring and pulled their dazed warrior back to the corner.

Life Values

hard-working, self-determined Horatio Alger hero is giving way to the affable young man in the grey flannel suit.

The newer interpretations of secular values Getzels described as "emergent."

He told of a study of students in 16 public, four religious and two private high schools in the Chicago area conducted by Richard Prince, principal of Chicago Christian High School.

Prince put questions to freshmen and seniors in these high schools designed to bring out whether they held traditional or emergent views of secular values. None of the differences Getzels said, was of statistical significance.

"In short," he said, "on the average, whatever the values were that the child brought with him when he entered high school, he took away with him also when he was graduated — nothing gained, nothing lost, nothing changed."

Maxwell Sets Sights on San Diego

HESPERIA, Calif. (UP) — Former National Amateur champion Billy Maxwell of Odessa, Tex., turned his sights on the $20,000 San Diego Open today after grabbing top money in the $15,000 Hesperia Open in a dramatic last minute duel with veteran Dow Fisterwald.

Maxwell watched a comfortable six-stroke margin dwindle away Sunday as he shot his first over-par round of the tourney on the opening nine while Fisterwald was turning in a three-under-par 33. But Maxwell rallied on the home stretch to win by two strokes with a 67-67-74—275 that was worth $2,600. Fisterwald turned in a 68-68-72-69—277 for $1,500.

Doug Ford of Mahopac, N. Y., Arnold Palmer of Latrobe, Pa., and Ken Venturi of San Francisco ended in a three-way tie for third place, each collecting $1,033.33 for cards of 279.

Babe Liguardus of Hillside, N.J., tied with Maxwell at the halfway mark in the tournament, turned in a final round 73 for a total of 261 and sixth place money of $800.

Ed (Porky) Oliver of Canton, Mass., turned in the best final round score, 36-35—68, but ended in a tie for seventh with Mike Souchak of Grossingers, N. Y., and Don Fairfield of Casey, Ill.

Other money winners included Gene Litter of San Diego, Calif., $600; Art Wall Jr., Pocon Manor, Pa., Jim Ferrier, Hollywood, and Smiley Quick, Los Angeles, $500 each; and Lloyd Mangrum Apple Valley Calif., Jack Mann, Chino, Calif., Tom Nieport, Cincinnati, Bob Roeburg Napa, Calif., and J. C. Goosie of Knoxville, Tenn., $301 each.

Nadir Off for Kentucky Much Richer

CAMDEN, N. J. (AP) — Nadir, the speller, was off for Kentucky today for a brief vacation, apparently leaving the 2-year-old championship to Jewel's Reward if he can win the $171,000 Pimlico Futurity at Baltimore, Nov. 23.

The 2-year-old picture was scrambled Saturday when Nadir won the $277,150 Garden State Stakes by 2 lengths from Terra Firma. The latter nosed out Rose Trellis for second place.

It was the first stakes victory for Nadir, who had lost twice to Jewel's Reward, in the Cowdin and Champagne Stakes at Belmont Park.

A year ago on the strength of a lone stakes victory, in the Garden State, the Calumet Farm's Barbizon was voted the champion, 2-year-old, and the one most likely to succeed in the Kentucky Derby and other 3-year-old classics.

It was the general opinion this time, however, that Nadir hadn't earned the crown, and that Jewel's Reward still could recoup with a victory in the Pimlico Futurity. Jewel's Reward has won four major stakes races, but showed no liking for the Garden State track and finished a dismal seventh in the mile and one sixteenth race.
